Quake strikes Alaska

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A major earthquake jolted south-central Alaska yesterday, knocking out power to one community and prompting authorities to urge the evacuation of low-lying coastal areas because of a possible sea wave.

The quake struck at 10:23 a.m. Alaska Standard Time and measured 7.4 on the Richter scale. It was centered 300 miles southeast of Anchorage in the Gulf of Alaska.

The Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer issued a warning covering nearly the entire southern coastline of the state and coastal British Columbia. A tsunami watch was in effect for the rest of Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California.

In Yakutat, the small village closest to the epicenter, the quake knocked out power but caused no major structural damage, said City Manager Jim Filip.

The latest quake comes just a week after another major quake prompted a tsunami warning that sent thousands of coastal residents seeking higher ground but was canceled 90 minutes later when no tsunami materialized.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

AIDS advice available

Because education is the University's strategy in fighting acquired immune deficiency syndrome, the Student Health Center offers information about the disease, according to its director.

"We do answer any questions and offer AIDS blood tests as well," said Dr. Joshua Kaplan, director of Student Health Services.

The health center will take the blood samples, but the blood is tested for the AIDS virus in an outside lab.

Kaplan said the tests are never performed without the consent of the student. The doctor or nurse may suggest that a test be taken, but will only take blood with the person's cooperation.

"The health center also offers answers to any questions a student may have about the syndrome. A student may come in and talk to us about anything," Kaplan said.

The staff at the health center respects the student's privacy, especially in regard to AIDS, he said.

"If a student comes in to ask questions or gets a test taken, this will not be reported to anyone. No one ever has access to a student's medical records," Kaplan said. "However, there are problems with this."

One problem is that state law requires all cases of AIDS be reported.

Local plant may be sold by Kelly Rose city reporter

Owners of a local plant are negotiating with a Cleveland area company that may result in 150 new jobs in the area.

The Carlon division of the Lambert and Sessions Co. of Beachwood, is negotiating for the purchase of the Contech plant, a former Armco Inc. plant, 510 E. Poe Road, with the help of a $2 million revenue bond issue unanimously approved by city council at its Nov. 9 meeting.

Finance Director Charles Kerr said approval was needed to begin selling the tax-exempt, low interest rate bonds to private investors to help finance the possible purchase and refurbishing of the plant.

If the Carlon Board of Directors approves the purchase at a mid-December meeting, the plant will be manufacturing molds for plastic parts used in the electronics industry.

Joe Pedro, a vice president of Carlon, said if the company buys the plant, once it is fully operational under the new management, the employees will be working seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

"We will probably keep the employees that work there now, and we will be looking for more employees from the area," Pedro said.

There are now about 16 Contech employees working at the plant. Pedro said he hopes the 50,000-square-foot plant on a 16-acre site can begin production by January. The start-up date depends on when the present owner vacates the building.

Pedro said eight molding machines could be brought to the plant and four new ones would be purchased. Eventually he said he hopes to house 30 machines in the proposed plant. Other supplies needed for the opening of the plant would be purchased in the area.

"We will have to work closely with cleaning supply companies and hardware dealers," he said.

Pedro added Bowling Green will "enjoy the impact of many millions of dollars generated by the plant."

The location of the plant is a plus for Carlon, Pedro said, because Bowling Green is close to major metropolitan areas that will allow the company to shorten shipping length from its Iowa plant. He added that the Bowling Green plant also has access to highways including the Ohio Turnpike and I-75.

Another factor considered during negotiation was that the company would have to put "only a minimum of expenses into the plant," he said.

Group seeks sober drivers

by Stefanie Penn

When the weather is nice, walking to the bars is an added pleasure. But what's going to happen when the snow starts flying and the wind begins blowing and a car ride sounds much more enticing?

Will someone volunteer to be a non-drinking driver? If not, a ride home could just add to the statistics of those killed in drunk-driving accidents every year.

However, there is one University organization, the "I'm Driving Club," that wants to decrease the number of people whose lives are ended by drunk drivers.

It is part of the "We Care" program, sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government.

Melissa Dunn, a USG representative, said the University was the first Ohio school to participate in this nationwide program and has been actively involved for two years. The organization now has over 60 colleges involved in 17 states and Canada.

This semester, the University chapter continues to try to reach the two main objectives of the "I'm Driving Club."

The first objective of the "Club" is to get all bars and restaurants to provide free soft drinks to people who take the responsibility of driving two or more friends home.

The club has been very successful in achieving this goal, said Julie Dalton, a representative of the club. She said any student can go into bars such as Howard's Club H, Mark's Pizza Pub, Uptown-Downtown and Yuppi's, show the bartender a membership card and receive a free soft drink.

Dalton said the second objective is to get students to inform and encourage everyone to rid the streets of drunk drivers and to reduce the third leading cause of death among teenagers.

Dunn estimated there are more than 1,300 students actively involved in the program. Students can get involved by going to the University Union Information Desk and signing a card which is free of charge.

After making this first step, a person has absolutely no obligation to the club, Dalton said.

A card holder can be any age and has the opportunity to use the card outside Wood County. Dalton said bars have been known to give free soft drinks to people who are driving, even if they've never heard of the "I'm Driving Club."

Country show to be held

Students who are looking for Christmas gifts may find help at the "Country Fair Treasures," a country craft show which will be held at the Wood County Fairgrounds Junior Fair Building Dec. 5 and 6.

The show will feature items like stained glass, baskets, wood carvings, toll paintings, wreaths, magnets, dolls and similar country items, according to Collette Dickey, a member of the fair board.

She said there will be about 60 exhibitors who are mostly hobbyists from around the state.

The price range for the crafts will range from a few dollars to around $100, she said.

"It's for everybody's pocketbook," she said.

She also said the Wood County Garden Club will be participating by selling live wreaths, poinsettia plants and Christmas arrangements.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Ohio AIDS cases doubling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Department of Health officials are sticking by their estimate that 40,000 Ohioans are potential AIDS spreaders and that as many as 5,000 state residents will be diagnosed with the fatal disease by 1991.

If the forecast holds true, it would mean almost an annual doubling in each of the next three years in the number of victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. The Ohio case number doubled from 242 in October 1986 to 484 in October 1987, Health Department spokesman Richard Wittenberg said. The figure had reached 529 by Nov. 2, he said.

He said officials expect the number to grow to 975 by the end of 1988, and to 3,000-5,000 by 1991, based on existing trends.

So far, Ohio has recorded 327 deaths from the disease, which is transmitted through sexual contact or contaminated drug needles.

'I'm Driving' vital

Two of the biggest moments in young adults' lives are when they turn 16 and can drive and when they turn 21 and can go into a bar and legally order a drink. These are privileges that society has come to regard as rights of passage.

However, as with all rights and privileges, along with these come responsibilities and the most important one is the obligation to keep alcohol and automobiles separate.

Drinking and driving is a leading cause of death in this country, and yet, unlike diseases like cancer and heart disease, it is 100 percent avoidable.

The "I'm Driving Club" exists on campus in order to be a part of the prevention. When a student joins the club, he or she is given a membership card, and whenever he or she is at a bar with friends and is the "designated driver" that evening, he or she can receive free soft drinks.

This is a positive effort in the University community to encourage students to have a responsible driver when they go out as well as an attempt to promote the idea of safety among bar owners.

We support the work of this organization and encourage all students to participate.

There is no membership fee and no obligation to the club once a person has joined, but the benefits to be gained include longer lives for drivers and passengers.

We also encourage all area bars to accept the cards and be willing to provide non-alcoholic beverages to designated drivers, be they club members or non-members. Bar owners should go even one step further in supporting the program and make known their participation through more advertising within their establishments. They will be reducing their own liability and providing a valuable public service.

'Star Trek' more than a show

Enterprise voyagers represent quest for improvement

Miscellaneous
By Mike Doherty

"Space...the final frontier...these are the voyages of the Starship Enterprise..."

It's impossible to say when I first became a "Trekkie." The original television show was canceled before I was even old enough to know what "voyage" meant, and sadly, ironically long before its "five year mission" (as mentioned in the opening theme) was complete.

But somehow, sometime between that cancellation and the horrendous reprise that was Star Trek: The Motion Picture, I got hooked.

Now, I can tell you Captain Kirk's middle name (Tiberius), the serial number on the Enterprise (NCC-1701), and I can even teach you how to play the card game "fizzbin." (If you want to learn, stop by and I'll explain.)

I've seen every episode of the original show at least twice, all four movies at least three times

(including the aforementioned dud that started it all), and now I faithfully tune in to the Fox Network every weekend to view each new episode of "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

The new generation of "Star Trek" crew members comes equipped with odd names like Jean-Luc Picard and William Riker, a Klingon and an android are bridge officers on the new Enterprise, and I must admit I remain as "fascinated" (thank you, Captain Spock) as ever.

What is it about this concept — for "Star Trek" has now transcended the status of mere "show" — that grips such a large portion of the American population?

The scripts are well-written, of course; Gene Roddenberry has earned the name "genius" among his peers and contemporaries, and the title is well-deserved.

Yes, the acting is impeccable as well; from Leonard Nimoy to LeVar Burton, each and every person who has performed in "Star Trek" has helped turn the paper magic of Roddenberry into a chemistry on both the small and silver screens that is arguably unmatched.

Yet, there is something more. There is an underlying theme in "Star Trek" that has persisted these two decades of its existence; the crew of the Enterprise is out searching for something — they don't know quite what, or when or where they'll find it — and they're ready to seek out that something "where no one has gone before."

Captain Kirk can wistfully quote Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities, and Captain Picard can demonstratively call up Hamlet, but the message each man delivers is the same: the human race will never stop trying to improve itself.

sion of what we may become, at least it is a powerfully encouraging vision.

The crew of the newest Enterprise is advanced beyond 20th-century humanity; telepathy is fairly common, and everyone is wonderfully well-educated; discrimination (even against Klingons) is not in evidence and even the common cold is a thing of the past.

What is it about this concept — for Star Trek has now transcended the status of mere "show" — that grips such a large portion of the American population?

No matter what obstacle we may face, our eager willingness to gain knowledge, our desire to improve ourselves as a result of that knowledge, and our wonderful mix of stubbornness and "changeability" will lead us toward our ultimate destination. No, we may not know what that destination is quite yet, but dammit if we aren't busting our tails to get there.

"Star Trek," by the very definition of its genre, is "futuristic," but I might hesitate before unduly labelling it "fictional." Part of the human race's natural curiosity leads us to wonder about our future, and though this be but one man's vi-

Nonetheless, this "superhuman" crew is out searching, both physically and emotionally for that next piece to the puzzle of life. They are in many ways an ideal for we "terra-bound" humans to emulate, yet their actions reaffirm for us that our own search, our own "journey" is well worth the effort.

Every time we watch the Enterprise continue its "ongoing mission," we are in a small way continuing one of our own.

Live long and prosper — or as Data might say, "Yes, sir, I thought I just said that."

Nothing's as useless as a $10 bill

By Lisa Hull

In today's mail I just received a letter from home. Everyone there is fine and Mom hopes that all is well with me and my roommate.

She also sent me a $10 bill.

Don't misunderstand me, I sincerely appreciate the gesture, but for all practical purposes a $10 bill is useless to a dorm-bound college student.

I can picture Mom at home writing at the kitchen table and throwing in that $10 just before she seals the envelope. She probably thinks that it will come in handy for all those little things essential to a college student.

And it will, if I can ever get it converted to a spendable form.

As most dorm residents can tell you, the front desks in residence halls are not equipped with money to make change. Sometimes the cashiers in the cafeterias will give change, but only if the managers are not around. I can always turn to the 30 or 40 people who live on my floor, but as unbelievable as it sounds, no one ever has enough cash to change a bill. More often than not they were just on their way to ask if you had change because they just got a letter from home...

After exhausting all possible sources close at hand, there are two options: either blow the money in one shot or buy something small and unnecessary to break the $10.

A quick round trip to a nearby carryout and I now have an unwanted pack of sugar-free gum, a five dollar bill, four ones and some loose change. The five is almost, but not quite, as useless as a 10. Usually one person can be found who has, and is willing to part with, change for a five. But the trip was not a total loss because now I have something of value in my possession — dollar bills.

Most dorm lobbies are equipped with a small machine that sucks up a dollar bill and spits out four quarters in return. If the machine is working, and if it still has quarters in it, I at long last have a negotiable form of cash. For a person who has quarters in a dorm is a person for whom all things are possible.

Quarters will wash and dry the three weeks worth of dirty clothes in the closet. Quarters will satisfy cravings for caffeine, chocolate and nicotine via the respective vending machines. They can prevent a parking ticket (no mere feat at Bowling Green State University) when fed into a meter.

A quarter will prevent writer's cramp by copying five pages of borrowed notes from the class I missed. Quarters will let me reach out and thank Mom for her letter by pay phone. With quarters I can buy a newspaper other than the BG News (no offense) and find out what is going on in the real world. Or if I prefer to avoid the real world, I can use quarters to play one of the video games in the lobby.

If you live off campus, you probably doubt the power of the common quarter. I envy you. You obviously never had to search frantically through desk drawers, coat pockets or purse bottoms in quest of them. My roommate Jennifer makes no secret of the fact that she executes raids worthy of the military on her parents' belongings for quarters whenever she goes home.

Many of the girls on my floor keep a well-guarded jar, glass or mug on their desks for the sole purpose of hoarding quarters. I once tried to take a quarter in exchange for two dimes and a nickel out of the glass on my friend Shari's desk. You would have thought I was trying to walk off with the family silver. The only way I got the quarter was to swear to give up my firstborn if I couldn't provide Shari with a quarter whenever she was down to two worthless dimes and a nickel.

Mom, I don't want to seem ungrateful, but do you think the extra postage would strain the family budget too much if you helped me cut out the middle man and sent the $10 as a roll of quarters?

Hull is a junior English major from Lima, Ohio.

Low class availability detrimental to students

The day partial schedules came out I hoped my mailbox would be empty, but instead my roommate came back to the room with two partial schedules. When I saw I only got 9 of the 16 hours I requested I was very angry. I heard people in my hall grumbling about having them, too.

I went to the legendary "drop-add" to try and fill some of my empty hours so I would be a full-time student. When I got there, I was happy there was not the usual long line drop-add is famous for. After I walked in I knew why there was no line. I could not get one class I wanted or needed for my major. Being a sophomore I thought it would get easier to get the classes I needed. I was wrong; it gets harder because of the few sections available and they are all filled. Most people were leaving more frustrated than when they came.

When I read in the BG News that 46 percent of the students got partials, I knew something must be wrong. For the tuition the students pay I do not think they should have to put up with not being able to get classes for their majors. Someone should realize there is a problem and try to solve it. All I have heard is the demand for classes is exceeding the amount of classes available.

The University should either hire more teachers or let fewer students in. It is a major waste of a student's time to take classes that will not help them graduate.

I know there will always be some problems with scheduling, but something should be done to help the students. I know I do not want to be here for 10 years trying to get courses I need to graduate. The courses are hard enough without having to fight for them, too.

Delts to continue no alcohol events

by Pamela Monastra
staff reporter

Being placed on social probation for a semester and restricted to non-alcoholic functions for another semester has caused Delta Tau Delta fraternity to create a new social events policy.

The fraternity members have decided to continue to schedule their social calendar with non-alcoholic teas, Sean Hardy, president of Delta Tau Delta, said.

"I believe that the probation period for us has had a positive impact on the house as a whole. It brought us closer together as a chapter," he said. "Putting together a non-alcoholic tea takes more committees and more time, which means more members of the house can get involved instead of just the social committee."

Jaime Regules, social chairman for the Delts said, "We've decided to keep this policy going because it will help us prepare for the future when the effect of the changed drinking age has an impact on the social life of every frater-sake of having it.

"Even though the date party had no alcohol it was a success," Hardy said. "Because nity and sorority on campus."

The policy the Delts have implemented includes having one-third of their scheduled teas non-alcoholic, including a date party.

Every tea will have a theme and will consist of having soft drinks, food and music.

"The date party was a surprise and the theme was called, 'The Delt Escapade,' which was ironic because the definition for escapade is 'an adventurous action that usually violates conventional standards of behavior,' Regules said. "Since the date party was not like our other date parties, the theme fit perfectly."

Hardy said this chapter is the first in the state to have a non-alcoholic party just for the

we will be adapted to non-alcoholic parties we hope to be an asset to other chapters on campus, we've dealt with the problems and the successes and we would like to be a resource for other chapters."

Wayne Colvin, director of Greek life, said the Delts were the first chapter on campus to initiate voluntarily a non-alcoholic policy.

"Probably within three years all national fraternities will establish a policy that states that the chapters cannot use the chapter funds to purchase alcohol and within five years a majority of the national fraternities will have established a policy that prohibits alcohol on fraternity premises as sororities already have," Colvin said.

Health center time availability reviewed

by Beth Thomas
assistant managing editor

Many students work, student-teach or just have busy schedules that keep them from using the Student Health Center, which is only open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday to Friday.

A survey conducted in the spring semester of 1986 by Dean Purdy, director of research and evaluation, indicated many students would like to have additional hours added to the health center's schedule.

The survey asked students when they would want extra hours to be added if more were made available. Forty percent said they would like the health center to have Saturday hours, and 52 percent said they would like evening hours.

However, according to Dr. Joshua Kaplan, director of the health center, weekend or evening hours will not be added to the health center's schedule this year.

"It's not currently in the plans," he said.

He said the health center will provide 24-hour emergency services, and students will always have to go to the hospital if they are hurt after 3 a.m. However, he said he would like to have more hours available for students to use the health center for routine services like annual physicals.

Kaplan said the only way to add additional hours is if he increases his staff, which would require an increase in the general fee.

"If USG (Undergraduate Student Government) supports it strongly enough, it can occur," he said, but added he knows USG is opposed to any fee increases.

Dave Robinson, president of USG, said he would oppose any fee increases, especially to the general fee because that is one part of the budget that can be controlled.

"If they were to increase the percentage the health center took from the present general fee, that's one thing. But I don't feel we need the general fee raised for any reason," he said. "I don't think students would mind paying more money for more services (at the health center), but I would rather it take a larger piece of the pie than enlarge the pie."

Kaplan said keeping the health center open two nights a week for about four hours at a time would require an additional $60,000 to $80,000 for the health center's budget, at least $40,000 of which would need to come from general fees. The remainder of the cost would be offset by fees patients incur while using the health center.

Doctor visits at the health center are free, but there is a charge for services like prescriptions, X-rays, lab tests and physical therapy.

Kaplan said the funds for additional evening or weekend hours could be provided by closing the health center one morning or afternoon a week, but that is not practical because the health center is almost always busy now.

"Closing an afternoon is not the answer. We want to see more people, not just see people at different times," he said. "It would be like robbing Peter to pay Paul."

For the health center to be open in the evening, he said, it wouldn't be as simple as moving a doctor and a nurse to the evening shift. He said he would want to have at least two nurse clinicians, two physicians, two receptionists, a medical assistant and a nurse. He also would prefer to have a pharmacist, a lab technician and X-ray technician on duty, he said.

"That's the minimum we would need to function at all as a clinic," he said.

However, he added that he does not expect the funds to be made available anytime in the immediate future.

"No, I don't think it's going to happen. People are not interested in more service for more money. They are only interested in more service," he said.

He said the two biggest complaints students have with the health center are that drop-in patients have to wait a long time to see a doctor and that students are usually not able to get an appointment immediately.

"This means I can't cut the doctor-hours down," he said.

He also said no room is available to expand his current staff because all of the health center's rooms are occupied all day.

He said he believes the staff is willing to add hours, but more personnel would be needed.

The health center did add a physical therapy clinic to its services last semester. Kaplan said the health center already had physical therapy equipment, and including the service was just a matter of renovating one room in the health center.

The physical therapy clinic is open three nights a week, and treats between two and six patients each time, he said.

He said students who need physical therapy generally have a hard time getting around, and therefore have a more immediate need than students who need to see a dentist or an optician.

"Nothing is 100 percent confidential, although students are safe from records being put into the hands of teachers or parents without their consent," he said.

Kaplan said the health center has not yet had to deal with the problem of a student with AIDS.

"As far as I know, there is nobody at this University with AIDS or carrying the disease," he said. "However, there could be scores of people carrying the virus or the antibodies without realizing it."

Should a student be found to have AIDS or carry the antibodies, counseling is offered at the health center.

"First of all, we would make absolutely sure the student totally understood their condition," he said.

He said a student would be counseled on what signs to look for and what to do if the condition should worsen. Also, the person would be reminded of the obligation to inform people with whom he or she may have come in contact of the condition.

"Whether the person carries the antibodies or actually has the virus, we would make sure he knows what kinds of activities are safe and which are risky," he said.

Factual counseling is not the only service offered by the health center staff.

"Of course, we would offer any emotional support that we could give. The patient would be free to talk to anyone here at the center about their feelings," Kaplan said.

Although the health center offers blood tests and counseling, treatment would be done by specialists.

"We will refer any patients with the condition, especially if it is infectious, to specialists," Kaplan said. "The physicians at Medical College of Ohio, for instance, are specialized in caring for AIDS victims."

Students found with the virus would be able to remain at the University until the condition becomes severe enough to require hospitalization, Kaplan said.

Fear halts Haiti activity

First free election in 30 years postponed after violence

PORT-AU-PRINCE (AP) — Haitians stayed home in fear yesterday, deserting the deadly streets where men with machine guns and machetes killed at least 34 people in a weekend of terror that destroyed the first free election in 30 years.

Most presidential candidates could not be reached at their homes or offices. The independent Electoral Council's nine members were in hiding.

Most businesses were closed. Few cars or public minibuses could be seen and the city's industrial park was virtually deserted. Small groups of men could be seen in some neighborhoods.

Scores of people were wounded Sunday by roving bands who attacked voting stations and people at random in the streets, while the army did nothing to stop it. Gunmen shot up the Electoral Council headquarters. The military-dominated National Governing Council postponed the first election of a president and legislature since 1957, when Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier began the family dictatorship that ended Feb. 7, 1986.

Silvio Claude, a major presidential candidate, asked that an international military force be sent to the poverty-stricken Caribbean nation to supervise a new election.

"We call on a group of nations — the Organization of American States or the United Nations — to send multinational forces to conduct elections if the United States, the boss of the junta, doesn't force it to step down," said Claude, a 53-year-old Protestant clergyman representing the Christian Democratic Party.

"No election is possible with this government. They are the Macoutes. They're the ones shooting everybody," he said on Radio Metropole. The Tontons Macoutes were the private Duvalier militia that terrorized the nation.

Haitians often accuse the United States of being the power behind the three-man junta led by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

Spokesmen at the state university hospital morgue said 34 bodies had been brought there. Radio reports said 67 people were wounded.

Radio Metropole was the only station broadcasting news yesterday. Radio Lumiere, a Protestant station, was knocked off the air by a fire last week and soldiers with flame throwers destroyed the transmitter of the Roman Catholic church's Radio Soleil, the station's co-director said.

Casualties on Sunday included 15 people shot or hacked to death at a voting station before the Electoral Council canceled the elections.

Terror gangs fired randomly at passersby, made methodical and brutal attacks on polling places, shot election observers, diplomats and journalists while soldiers stood by, refusing to intervene.

Secretary of State George Shultz blamed supporters of President Jean-Claude Duvalier, son of Papa Doc Duvalier, who fled the country Feb. 7, 1986, appealed for calm yesterday from France, where he lives in exile.

Chicago mayor buried

CHICAGO (AP) — The city bade a tearful farewell yesterday to Mayor Harold Washington with prayers and praise as dignitaries, family and friends gathered at his funeral and thousands mourned outside under wet, gray skies.

Ministers, politicians and relatives eulogized the city's first black mayor before his flag-draped casket as a scrappy political fighter with a warm sense of humor. He died Wednesday of a heart attack at age 65.

Several speakers vowed to carry on Washington's self-proclaimed reform administration.

Senator criticizes NRA

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, sponsor of legislation in the Senate to place restrictions on the purchase of handguns, lashed out yesterday at the National Rifle Association for what he called its "irrational position" on the bill.

Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, testified before a House Subcommittee on Crime hearing in Cleveland on a federal proposal that would require a seven-day waiting period after application to purchase a gun.

Sponsors say the waiting period would allow police to do background checks on potential gun purchasers as well as deter suicides.

Atlanta inmates hold out

ATLANTA (AP) — A "small but aggressive minority" of Cuban inmates blocked the release of 90 hostages from a federal penitentiary yesterday, officials said, while hundreds of Cubans who surrendered in Louisiana were sent to other federal prisons.

The same 100 Cubans, out of a total population of 1,118, earlier blocked the release of 50 hostages in Atlanta, said Patrick Korten, deputy director of the public affairs for the U.S. Justice Department.

"Unfortunately, a small but aggressive minority appears to be able to intimidate this majority into dragging out the incident and avoiding a settlement," Korten said.

"Had it been up to those who have been negotiating on behalf of the apparent majority, they (the hostages) would probably be out."

The prison was quiet yesterday, and there was no inmate reaction to the Louisiana settlement. Authorities spoke with some inmates yesterday, but no formal negotiations were scheduled.

Atlanta inmates and federal officials have been at a stalemate since four hostages were released Sunday morning.

"We are prepared to be as patient as necessary as we await a decision by the Cuban detainees to settle the incident on a fair and equitable basis," Korten said, refusing to give additional details on the rift between inmates.

Federal agents will not use force to regain control of the 85-year-old stone prison as long as the prison workers held hostages are safe, he said.

Inmates have made videotapes of 70 of the 90 hostages and all appear to be safe, Korten said.

In Louisiana, the 950 Cubans who on Sunday released 26 hostages at the Federal Detention Center boarded buses yesterday en route to 12 other federal prisons.

Career closes for Thornton

CLEVELAND (AP) — Andre Thornton, a power hitter who had the misfortune of spending many of his most productive years in the middle of a weak Cleveland Indians lineup, retired from baseball yesterday.

"I think it was understood that I was no longer in the plans of the ballclub," Thornton said. "It would be very difficult for me to again feel the juices that I felt at the beginning of last season."

Thornton, 38, said it was possible he might stay with the Indians in some front-office job, although no specifics of such a position have been worked out. He said he has no desire to coach or manage.

Team President Hank Peters said the Indians would honor the final year of the four-year, $4.4 million contract Thornton signed in 1984.

Thornton battled a series of injuries throughout his 14-plus seasons in the majors and had only eight seasons in which he was credited with at least 400 at bats. In five of those, he ranked among the American League's top 10 home run hitters.

He hit .254 with 253 home runs and 895 RBI in his 5,291 career at bats. Of his 253 homers, 214 were with Cleveland, the most by any right-handed hitter in Indians' history.

He was 13 away from surpassing Earl Averill as the club's all-time home run leader.

In 1987, the Indians kept Thornton on their roster all season despite burying him on the bench. He started 12 of the first 20 games as Cleveland's designated hitter, the role he performed almost exclusively since 1982, but he started only seven times the rest of the year as the Indians lost 101 games.

"I certainly felt that there were some mistakes made," he said. "I believe I could have helped this ballclub weather the storm."

After hitting 33 homers and driving in 99 runs for Cleveland in 1984, Thornton became a free agent before signing his current four-year deal. Midway through spring training of 1985, however, he tore knee cartilage and underwent his third knee operation. He had his fourth knee operation after the 1986 season.

"During my career, I've been with only three hitters that could carry a club on their backs for a month at a time: Harmon Killebrew, Willie Stargell and Andre Thornton," pitcher Bert Blyleven said while he was with the Indians in 1985. "Andre just never had as good a lineup around him."

Thornton came to the majors with the Chicago Cubs in 1973 as a first baseman, third baseman and outfielder. He was traded to the Montreal Expos during 1976 and was then acquired by Cleveland at the end of that season.

Thornton missed the 1980 season because of two knee operations and sat out most of 1981 with a broken hand. He came back in 1982 with his best season as an Indian, hitting .273 and finishing third in the league in homers (32) and RBI (116) despite tearing a rotator cuff that September.

He made the AL All-Star team in 1982 and '84.

Cagers open with a win

by Ron Fritz
editor

Anthony Robinson reached a milestone in his career by scoring 1,000 points as a Falcon, but it was senior teammate Steve Martenet who stole the spotlight last night in the season-opener.

Martenet netted a career-high 26 points and Bowling Green scored the final 10 points to down Findlay 70-63 in front of 2,702 at Anderson Arena.

"I was getting open shots when we reversed the ball against their zone," Martenet said. "I was getting good passes. Honestly, we haven't worked too much against the zone in practice."

Falcon coach Jim Larranaga said he doesn't mind if Martenet shoots the ball.

"He's a 58 percent shooter from the floor. He can shoot any time he's open," the second-year coach said. "He played excellent down the stretch."

With 3:36 left in the contest, BG trailed 63-60 following a layup by the Oilers' Todd Kaufman. But Findlay was unable to score the rest of the game because of a trapping Falcon defense.

At the 3:19 mark, Martenet drilled a three-pointer to tie the game.

"I didn't check my feet to see if I was behind the line," the 6-foot-6 forward said. "I was open and shot the ball."

Junior guard Scott Kalish, replacing Robinson, who fouled out with 5:53 remaining, drilled a three-point shot of his own to give the Falcons a 66-63 advantage.

"That was a big shot by Scott," Larranaga said.

Sixteen seconds later, Martenet sank two charity tosses to give BG a five-point lead. Kalish added two more free throws for the final margin of victory.

Findlay coach Ron Niekamp, whose squad upset the Falcons 86-73 last season, said BG played best when it counted.

"Down the stretch, we made mistakes and Bowling Green converted on them," Niekamp said. "I thought we had a bona-fide chance to win the game if we got a lead in the second half. We got it, but they played better in the final two minutes."

The Falcons took a 35-28 lead late in the first half as freshman Derek Kizer converted an offensive rebound, but Findlay guard Aaron Roth canned a three-pointer to cut BG's half-time margin to 35-31.

Following intermission, the Falcons again went up by seven, but the Oilers were able to overcome the advantage and take the lead until Martenet's three-point shot tied the game at 3:19.

Findlay, which shot 24-of-60 from the field for 40 percent, was led by Brian Stadler's 23 points. Roth and Anthony Slappy each added 11.

In addition to Martenet's 26, Robinson scored 13 and freshman Joe Moore chipped in with 10 points for BG. The Falcons were 29-of-76 for 38 percent from the field.

The Oilers out-rebounded BG 42-36.

Larranaga said he was pleased with the win.

"It's a win that we didn't get last year," he said. "We'll improve as we get experience. This was a good win against a good team."

Falcons place second at MAC

by Andy Woodard
sports reporter

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — The Mid-American Conference volleyball tournament championship was everything it wasn't supposed to be for Bowling Green.

Expectations were high for a five-game final, furious rallies at the net and a first-ever victory over fellow finalist Western Michigan.

But none of that materialized. The Broncos whipped BG 15-5, 15-10, 15-2, to win the inaugural MAC tourney at Reid Field House on the WMU campus. With the win, WMU received the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament and will play at Big-Eight champion Oklahoma Friday.

Bronco coach Rob Buck, whose squads have now won 88 consecutive MAC matches dating back to 1982, said the essential element for victory was his team shutting down the Falcon offense.

"The key was (Jo Lynn) Williamson," he said. "I think (BG coach) Denise (Van De Walle) counted on her to hit a little better in the match. And we were serving extremely well, so (setter Linda) Popovich was

Two Falcons earn conference honors

Bowling Green volleyball players Jo Lynn Williamson and Linda Popovich have been selected to the All Mid-American Conference team, which was selected by the conference coaches.

The squads were announced yesterday.

Williamson was selected to the first team, while Popovich was picked to the second team. Both are coming off record-setting performances in BG's MAC tournament win over Central Michigan last weekend.

Williamson, the school record holder for kills in a career, captured another school mark with 35 kills in the Falcons' semi-final win.

Popovich, the school record holder in assists, set another BG standard by passing out 80 assists in the CMU match.

The first team consisted of Williamson, Western Michigan's Gail Church, Lise Martin, Lynda McLean and Andrea Pedrick, and Eastern Michigan's Roxanne Munch.

The Chippewa's Karen Histed, Miami's Karen Lepley, WMU's Laurie Maierhofer, EMU's Nancy Rademacher, Ball State's Sharon Strayer and Popovich comprised the second team.

The MAC player- and coach-of-the-year will be announced today.

Harkema named MAC's top coach

TOLEDO (AP) — Eastern Michigan coach Jim Harkema, Kent State running back Eric Wilkerson, Ball State linebacker Greg Garnica, and Ball State running back Bernie Parmalee have been named the major award winners in the Mid-American Conference in balloting by the MAC media.

Harkema was a near-unanimous choice as coach of the year after directing the Hurons to their first MAC title and a berth in the Dec. 12 California Bowl.

Eastern Michigan had a 9-2 record, setting a school mark for victories in a season. The Hurons, who had never previously finished higher than a tie for fourth in the conference, were 7-1 in the MAC in 1987 and won the league title by two games.

Before Harkema's arrival from Grand Valley State College in 1983, Eastern Michigan had won four of its previous 46 games. The Hurons were 1-10 in his first season and started 0-6-2 in 1984. Since that time, the Hurons are 21-15.

Wilkerson, a junior tailback from Cleveland, led the nation in all-purpose yardage and topped the MAC in rushing to receive offensive player of the year honors. Eastern Michigan quarterback Ron

Icers swept with ease by Spartans

by Al Franco
sports reporter

Michigan State's sweep of the Bowling Green hockey team this past weekend further established the fact that MSU and Lake Superior are the dominant forces in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

MSU beat the Falcons 6-3 Friday night at the BG Ice Arena and 7-3 Sunday afternoon in front of a sellout crowd of 6,643 at the Spartans' Munn Arena.

BG dropped its record to 7-6-1 to remain in the middle of the CCHA standings, while the Spartans' two victories over the Falcons set the stage for an MSU showdown with LSSC this weekend for the league's top spot.

The Lakers swept Michigan over the weekend to post a 10-2-2 CCHA record, while the Spartans are at 10-3-1.

"We lost four games to those two teams," BG head coach Jerry York said. "You have to give them a lot of credit. Right now, they are the top two teams in the league." If there was any uncertainty about how good the Spartans were after Friday's 6-3 win, the question was answered Sunday.

"They were a much better team in Sunday's game (as opposed to Friday)," York said. "They seemed to exploit our weaknesses."

The Spartans' tenacious forechecking hindered the Falcons from moving the puck out of their own zone.

In the first period, MSU outscored BG 3-1. Spartan freshman winger Pat Murray scored his first goal of the season to open the scoring. Senior captain Tom Tilley and Danton Cole added first period tallies for the Spartans. Bob Reynolds assisted on both Tilley's and Cole's goals.

Junior Brian Meharry had the lone BG goal of the period as he scored on the power play. Meharry's 14th goal of the season was the second tally of the contest coming at 11:32. Meharry knocked in a rebound after Spartan goalie Jason Muzzatti stopped Greg Parks initial shot. MSU's Kerry Russell scored the only goal of the second period on the power play to give the Spartans a 4-1 lead.

BG senior Brent Regan scored at 9:05 of the third period to bring the Falcons within two goals. Regan, who was stationed just to the left of MSU net, received a pass from Nelson Emerson and beat Muzzatti high on the glove side.

BG's Andy Gribble (13) had reason to celebrate after his goal (puck is in the right hand corner) made it 1-0 early in the first period Friday against Michigan State. But MSU goalie Jason Muzzatti (29), Brad Hamilton (3), Don Gibson (2) and the rest of the Spartans had even more reason to celebrate — they swept BG with 6-3 and 7-3 victories this weekend.

Wildcats down BG

Cagers lose fourth consecutive season opener

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports reporter

The Bowling Green women's basketball team's 80-62 loss to Northwestern Sunday night was nothing unusual.

On the surface, it may sound a bit peculiar since the Falcons were 27-3 last season. The loss, however, may be a positive sign.

If history repeats itself, the Falcons do not have anything to worry about. Under head coach Fran Voll's direction, BG has now lost four straight opening games and have went on to successful seasons. Last year's squad lost to Kentucky in the opener and went on to win 27 of their next 28 games and finish first in the MAC.

The Wildcats, coming off a third-place finish in the Big Ten

Voll

Conference and a first-round victory in the NCAA tournament last season, built on a 34-29 half-time lead to down the Falcons in Anderson Arena.

After the tipoff, the Falcons jumped out to a 4-0 lead on baskets by Jackie Motycka and Megan McQuire. BG did not relinquish their lead until Carrie Lawless, who came off the bench to lead the Wildcats with 25 points, sank two free throws with 1:52 left in the half.

The Falcons tied the game 55 seconds later when center Angie Bonner sank a pair of free throws. The Wildcats, however, went on to score the final five points of the half to give the Big Ten visitor a five-point lead at the intermission.

Two quick baskets by Kelly Cole and Jeanine Wasielewski to start the second half gave the Wildcats a nine-point lead. They led by 11 (44-33) until the Falcons slowly chipped away at the lead and cut it to four (52-48) with 11:32 to play.

The Falcons trailed 60-54 with 8:22 left when the Wildcats went on a 10-4 run to give them a 70-58 lead with 4:29 left. The rally was highlighted by four fast-break scores in which BG fouled the NU shooter each time.

The onslaught all but put away the game as BG never again cut the lead to under 10 points. The Wildcats were 14 of 17 from the charity stripe in the game while the Falcons connected on seven of 10 attempts. BG was outrebounded 42 to 30 in the contest and was also outshot by shooting only 42.6 percent (26 of 61) from the field compared to NU's 51.7 percent (30 of 58).

Following Lawless' 25 points, Kelly Byrne had 16 while Laura Arnold tallied 15 for the Wildcats. Arnold and Byrne both had eight rebounds. The Falcons were led by Motycka's 17 points and eight rebounds, five off the offensive glass. Bonner chipped in 10 points and eight rebounds.

The Falcons travel to Eastern Illinois Saturday before returning home Dec. 8 to face the University of Detroit.

'Dawgs' not ready for doghouse after defeat

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns' "dawgs" say they won't be hanging their heads over their 38-24 loss to the San Francisco 49ers.

"We're not going to let this shake our confidence," said cornerback Hanford Dixon, one of the Cleveland defensive backs who nicknamed themselves the "dawgs" several years ago.

"There are places we still want to go," Dixon said. "We're still in first place. The thing we have to do is go back to work and get ready for Indianapolis."

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana passed for 342 yards and four touchdowns against the Browns, whose defense had been ranked first in the NFL before the game Sunday night.

Montana consistently outfoxed Cleveland and seemed to know when the Browns were going to be switching from their usual man-to-man coverage to a zone.

"We played Montana's game instead of making him play ours," said defensive end Sam Clancy. "We tried everything, but they played a perfect game. Whenever we did get some pressure on him, he rolled out and completed the pass or ran. He has to be the best quarterback we'll see all year."

Montana was at his best on a third-and-19 play midway through the second quarter, when he hit Jerry Rice with a 30-yard pass for one of Rice's three touchdowns.

"We were in a man-to-man coverage but we heard Montana audible (change the play at the line of scrimmage)," said safety Felix Wright. "So we changed our coverage. We can't always tell what play's being called with an audible, but this time we knew Rice was going to run a deep post. We dropped back into a two-deep zone and Rice caught the ball in front of us."

Safety Ray Ellis tried to swipe at the ball but said he mis-timed the move.

"We want to meet up with Montana again," Ellis said.

Rice said the Browns' defense, known for trying to intimidate opponents by talking and barking at them, was loud at the beginning of the game.

"The Browns were doing a lot of talking at the start," he said. "When we started moving the ball, it got quiet, very quiet."

Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer, whose 7-4 team has a one-game lead on Houston and Pittsburgh in the AFC Central Division, said: "There's nothing fatal about falling. It's only fatal when you don't stand up. We're going to stand up."

receiving the ball away from the position she would have liked to and the dimensions of their offense became a little more predictable.

Williamson made only four kills and six errors in 31 attempts for a .065 percentage. Popovich passed out only 21 assists.

In the five game semifinal win over Central Michigan the night before, Williamson made a school-record 35 kills and Popovich passed out a school-record 80 assists. Jane Plantz and Kelley Ellett made 22 and 16 kills, respectively, in that win.

Van De Walle said another reason for the quick loss was the Broncos' athletic ability.

"They were able to run every play series they wanted," she said. "They jumped higher and hit the ball down. We were a little bit confused by some of their plays. But it didn't matter because when they hit the ball at you 100 miles per hour, it's hard to play defense."

The Broncos started a team of Katharine Werme (6-3), Joanne Bingham (6-2), Gail Church (6-2), Lise Martin (6-0), Laurie Maierhofer (6-0) and Andrea Pedrick (5-10).

BG had only one player (Sheri Fella) taller than Pedrick, the Bronco setter.

"I think we're playing with confidence and interacting well right now," Buck said. "It looks like we're coming together at just the right time."

Two of the bright spots for BG were the play of Ellett and Fella. Ellett made seven kills and only one error in 15 attempts for a .400 percentage. She added 10 digs, three solo blocks and one block assist, one service ace and two assists.

Fella made six kills and no errors in 10 attempts for a .600 percentage. She added nine digs, one block assist, and two assists.

Wyche feeling losses

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals Coach Sam Wyche says the wear and tear of a 3-8, last-place season is taking its toll on him.

"My insides are slowly eroding," Wyche said after Sunday's 27-20 road loss to the New York Jets, the latest blow in Cincinnati's dismal season.

Wyche has been peppered by calls for his firing in view of a series of frustrating, late-game losses by the Bengals, who were rated in the preseason as likely winners of the NFL's AFC Central Division. Instead, the team is dead last and sinking.

The Bengals, 0-6 at home this season, play host Sunday to the Kansas City Chiefs.

There are signs Wyche — in his fourth season as Cincinnati's head coach — is tiring of the relentless criticism and second-guessing.

When asked how he hopes to maintain his sanity, Wyche told reporters, "Even you asking that question is a tough one for me to answer. I don't want to be impolite to you. As soon as I am, then I build another reputation. I'm either too soft or too tough, and right now I want to be too strong to give in to anything."

The Jets blocked a field-goal attempt by Cincinnati's Jim Breech and turned it into a game-winning, 67-yard touchdown with two minutes remaining Sunday. Breech had missed the kick seconds before, but was given another chance because the two-minute warning had already been sounded.

Earlier, the Bengals had a touchdown pass from Boomer Esiason to Eddie Brown nullified. Game officials ruled the play was dead because, even though Esiason completed the pass, he was in the grasp and control of Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau.

OU's Bryant fires coaches

ATHENS (AP) — Ohio University head football coach Cleve Bryant yesterday announced the firing of three of his assistant coaches following consecutive 1-10 seasons.

Bryant fired offensive coordinator Robert Wylie, defensive coordinator Tom Hollman and defensive tackle coach Chuck Martin. All three had been at OU since 1985, when Bryant took over as head coach.

In a statement, Bryant said, "Yesterday was the most difficult day for me since I've been in the coaching profession. After evaluation of the program, I felt I needed to make some changes. Some of these changes resulted in releasing three of my assistant coaches. ... It was a difficult task and one that I did not enjoy."

Bryant declined to answer questions about the firings.

Ohio U. Athletic Director Harold McElhaney also issued a statement in which he said he was confident Bryant made the decision based on "what the coach felt was best for Ohio University and the athletic department."

Reached Sunday, Wylie said he felt hurt by the dismissal and that he didn't think the matter was handled professionally. Bryant was pressured by the administration, Wylie said.

Martin said Bryant told him of the dismissal Sunday but gave no reason for it.

"It's always a surprise and a disappointment, but with a record like we've had for the past three years, I guess this result is always a possibility," Martin said.

The Bobcats have gone 4-29 under Bryant.

Adams and running back Gary Patton finished second and third respectively in the balloting.

Hunter

Wilkinson averaged 111 yards rushing and 188.5 all-purpose yards per game. He was also second in the conference in kickoff returns and seventh in scoring. The 5-foot-9, 181-pound tailback rushed for 1,221 yards, caught 23 passes for 269 yards, and returned 25 kickoffs 584 yards for an MAC record 2,074 all-purpose yards.

Garnica, of Kettering, Ohio, won a close vote for defensive player of the year honors, edging Toledo's Steve Huffman and Bowling Green's John Hunter.

A third-year sophomore, Garnica led the MAC in tackles for the second year in a row from his inside linebacker spot. He had 110 solo tackles and 78 assists for an average of 17.1 tackles per game. He caused four fumbles, recovered two more and intercepted a pass.

Parmalee rushed for 1,064 yards and 15 touchdowns during the season and led the conference in scoring. He missed portions of four games with injuries.

goal of the contest 10:30 to give the Spartans a 5-2 lead, Regan came right back and scored at 14:36. Regan's second goal of the contest came as he put the puck between Muzzatti's legs on the breakaway.

York said Regan was a bright spot on an overall dismal day for the Falcons.

"I think that's the best game he's played in his career at Bowling Green," York said.

MSU's Cole and Murray scored the final two goals of the game to ice a Spartan victory. Cole's goal gave him the three-goal "hat-trick." Murray had two goals, while Reynolds added three assists.

Whereas the Spartans dominated Sunday's action, they simply made the most of their opportunities in Friday's outing. This is evidenced by the Falcons outshooting the Spartans 39-27. This was the first time MSU has been outshot all season, but BG couldn't put the puck by Muzzatti enough to win the contest as the Spartans skated to a 6-3 victory.

In the first period, BG's Andy Gribble opened up the scoring at 2:13 with his 12th goal of the season, but the Spartans scored three unanswered goals to take a 3-1 lead into the locker room after one period. Reynolds scored twice, while Cole added a single.

Regan

Potvin

In the second period, the team's traded goals. Freshman Pierrick Maia scored his second goal of the season for the Falcons as Joe Quinn and Marc Potvin notched assists. Kerry Russell countered for the green and white as MSU led 4-2 after two periods.

Defenseman Chris Luongo gave the Spartans a three goal lead as he scored at just 1:53 of the final period. Geoff Williams cut the deficit to two as he scored his second goal of the season at 11:04. Potvin notched his second assist of the game on the tally.

Cole ended the scoring with a short-handed goal at 14:50 to give MSU a 6-3 win.

Senior Don Barber saw action Friday for the first time in weeks after suffering ligament damage to his knee Oct. 31. His knee was sore after the contest so he sat out again Sunday. Chad Arthur also came back from a shoulder injury to play in Sunday's contest.

BG was a dismal one for 14 on power play attempts against the best penalty killing team in the CCHA.

Junior Greg Parks continues to lead the Falcons in scoring with 27 points, while Brian Meharry and Nelson Emerson are second and third, respectively. Meharry has 25 points, while Emerson has 24.

This weekend the Falcons travel to Kalamazoo, Mich. to face Western Michigan. The Broncos are currently in third place in the CCHA behind Lake Superior and Michigan State. WMU has a record of 8-6 for 16 points just one point ahead of BG, which has a record of 7-6-1 for 15 points.
